After portraying a tinnitus-stricken getaway driver in this summer's music-powered hit Baby Driver, Ansel Elgort is back on the right side of the law in his new movie, November Criminals. Adapted from the novel by Sam Munson, the film stars Elgort and Chloë Grace Moretz as a pair of college-bound, falling-for-each-other friends who defy the authorities to uncover the truth about the mysterious death of a classmate.

November Criminals is directed by Sacha Gervasi (Hitchcock, Anvil: The Story of Anvil) and cowritten by Gervasi and Steven Knight (Eastern Promises). The film costars Catherine Keener, and David Strathairn.

November Criminals will be released digitally on Nov. 7 and in theaters Dec. 8.
